

The Alleged Haunting of B----House: Including a Journal Kept During the Tenancy of Colonel Lemesurier Taylor

A singular feature of the case is the intrepidity of most of the witnesses. -The Athen?um The book is a valuable, interesting and bona fide record of very curious phenomena. -The Spectator Remarkably interestingIt may be as well to state at once that this is not a ghost story in the ordinary acceptation of the term, but a sober attempt to investigate the alleged haunting of B___ House, in Perthshire. The investigations were carried out during the past few years but the haunting is supposed to have existed since 1844. The matter has excited considerable general interest owing to the letters on the subject which have appeared in the Times. -The Publishers Circular and Booksellers Record

The audible phenomena were so frequent and so various, that a conspectus of them is given in an appendix. Some of them appeared to be human in origin, such as voices, reading or speaking, footsteps, and, according to earlier witnesses, screams and moans. Others might have been caused by dogs, such as pattering footsteps, jumping and pouncing as in play, the wagging of a dogs tail against the door, and the sound as of a dog throwing itself against the lower panels. Other sounds have been differentiated, as the detonating or explosive noise; the clang sound, as of the striking of metal upon wood; the thud or heavy fall without resonance; and the crash, which was never better described than as if one of the beasts heads on the staircase wall had fallen into the hall below. It very often, or almost always, seemed to occur under the glass dome which lighted the body of the house, and the falling object seemed to strike others in its descent, so that it was not ineffectively imitated by rolling a bowl along the stone floor of the hall, and allowing it to strike against the doors or pillars, when the peculiar echoing quality was fairly reproduced by the hollow domed roof and surrounding galleries. The editors offer no conclusions. This volume has been put together, as the house at B---- was taken, not for the establishment of theories, but for the record of facts.
