

The Active Christian: Series of Lectures (Classic Reprint)

Excerpt from The Active Christian: Series of Lectures
Man has been formed for activity; and if he is renewed in his mind he will be an active Christian. The whole of his religious activity is commonly called holy living; and he who does not exert the faculties of his mind in conformity with the moral law, cannot be the subject of spiritual life. Lord, what wilt thou have me to do? is an inquiry which arises from the heart of every converted sinner; to which the answer has been given in numerous ways, that we should do good unto all men as we have opportunity, and especially to the household of faith. No one should regard himself as a Christian, or as a sincere follower of the Lord Jesus, who is not actively engaged in doing his will. If a man loves Christ he will keep his commandments; and if any man loves him not he is accursed. It is clearly shown, in the following work, that the foregoing statements are true; and that the great business of every Christian, while dwelling upon earth, should be, to glorify God, by promoting the conversion of sinners and the edification of saints.
