

BRUTAL INSTINCTS: A Young Adult Werewolf Horror Story

Each year Kyle takes a month long camping trip into the wilderness, usually by himself. All of his friends are city bound, and have no desire to trek through the woods with the mosquitoes biting at their arms. And despite his wife's wishes, he is determined to go no matter what. Nothing is going to keep Kyle from his yearly tradition that was bestowed on him by his father. He was proud and grateful his father taught him how to survive by the way of the land. But on this trip Kyle discovers he is not alone. His survival instincts kick in automatically. He is not sure what the motives are of this unexpected visitor but Kyle was not gonna let anyone or anything get in his way. His father taught him better than that! Warning: This young adult werewolf horror story has very dark and disturbing images. Adults should read the story before determining whether or not it is appropriate for a child in their care. Here is a preview: Grabbing everything that I needed, I started to hike into the woods with nothing but the backpack over my shoulders. I knew this area well, and I was a proficient hunter and fisherman, and could live off the land with the best of them. It wasn't long before I made camp, and it was the perfect spot right near the edge of the lake that was surrounded by several tall trees in both directions. I'm not sure if anybody else knows about this spot, as most of the campers always went on the marked path and never strayed from it in the very least. That was not how I rolled, and it was my fervent belief that anything worth doing was worth doing the right way. The first thing that I noticed was there was a fire pit with a few charred logs, announcing the fact that somebody had been here recently. Looking at the logs, I could see a small sliver of smoke coming from underneath it, indicating that whoever was here was probably not far away. Looking up and down the lake edge, I saw no signs of any life whatsoever. In fact, the only thing I found were animal footprints, and nothing that told me that there was human life in the vicinity. The only footprints from a human were by the fire, and then they virtually disappeared with the animal prints taking over. If I was a betting man, I would say that whoever was here was probably taken by wild animals, but it really didn't seem to be likely, as most animals stayed away unless provoked.
